Ruggles Brothers, Elizur and Stanley, built a sawmill on the Huron River in 1832. Elizur went into farming and sold his share to his brother Stanley in 1834 and Stanley sold to the Armstrong Brothers in 1836. They added a gristmill across the river in 1839. Elizur's farm was south of Atlantic Street and east and north of the river. He later platted the farm in 1872 and the houses now there were built in the 1870s and later. This area was called "Egypt" in the 19th and early 20th century. Elizur's farmhouse still stands.

The Huron River, and Pettibone Creek flowing into it, provided water-power for the 14 mills built in the area in the 19th and 20th centuries. Luman Fuller built the first gristmill on the Huron in 1834, where Peters' bridge is now. This later became the Peters Mill. There were also a woolen mill, a cooperage and a tannery in that complex. The first street connected the Ruggles saw mill and the Fuller grist mill and is now called Huron Street.

Jabesh Mead platted part of South Milford Road, called Mead's Addition, in 1836. The same year he and his brother-in-law, Ansley Arms, built the first store. Mead & Arms, just west of the Public Square, where Dr. Ridings dentist office now stands. This first store was moved three times and ended up on the Huron River (where it may still be seen). The business moved north of the river, occupying several different buildings, and is still in business. Arms also had built, in 1836 the first farm house in Milford Village, It still stands, southwest of the fire station.
